Property Description

The house: This is the essence of the perfect home in which the natural world is incorporated in every room of this architecturally exquisite home. Nestled below primary forest and completely surrounded by a 3,000+ acre single property with conservation easements and old plantations, the home is very private. Large numbers of toucans visit the property in the afternoons; howler and capuchin monkeys cavort in the trees regularly, scarlett macaws now live in the valley and whales can be spotted swimming in the Ballena National Park below. Architecturally the house is simply elegance, made entirely of fine local hardwoods, the house has a rich, lively feeling. It is described as a tree house, as a mountain home, and a beach house all in one. The house was completed in 2007 and was built of several types of the finest local hardwoods, including 32 8"x8"x8' corteza columns, floors and ceilings of guapinol, and a 3,000 square foot deck of nispero chicle.
