Property Description

Situated on one of the most stunning lots overlooking the Whale's Tail above Uvita in the neighborhood of Bejuco, this well built home features a partially paved turn around driveway, extensively engineered underground and above ground drainage and retention systems, mature landscaping with a wide variety of producing trees, including Lime, Mango, Guava, Guayaba, Mamonos, Awaocado, Coconuts, Pineapples, Bananas, Llang Llang, and many more. There are several locations where a small guest house could be built on the property, both above the driveway and on an uncleared area of the property to the South. The house was constructed using a hybrid Covintec system. It is lighter, stronger, and deeper than traditional construction and is essentially bulletproof engineering. It is 3 times stronger and 30% lighter than block. Roof is constructed of 4x4" welded box beams. The whole house is virtually a solid pour of concrete around reinforced earthquake resistant structural insulation.
